

Mental Health

Trauma can increase stress and anxiety levels, but research shows that pausing, taking a breath or a beat, and finding ways to create calm can help us cope with stressful situations.

The Press Pause project, launched in partnership with MTV and through Half of Us, uses breathing, movement, gratitude, and other tools to help you to decompress and regroup.

